

CAVE

A NEW CHAPTER

CAVE announces UMI as its new home base

A NEW HOME...

After eight years of bringing people together through underground electronic music, CAVE enters a new chapter. From November 2026, UMI becomes CAVE's new home base, marking the beginning of an exciting new phase for the Brussels-based party concept.

Following its first event at UMI in September, CAVE now establishes a regular presence at the venue. This new home provides a base for future editions while leaving room for special events and collaborations at other locations.

Rooted in the LGBTQIA+ community and welcoming open-minded friends, CAVE continues to put music first, with the same commitment to community, individuality and respect that has defined the project since its beginnings in 2018.

A LITTLE PARTY NEVER KILLED NOBODY

A LITTLE PARTY NEVER KILLED NOBODY

A simple idea, somewhere in April 2018. Tom and Fran wanted a night out with the music they loved, somewhere they could feel at home, together with their friends. With few options beyond legendary nights like La Demence and Revelation, they decided to create their own little party. No big ambitions, no grand plans. Just good music, good people and a room to connect.

That room was the small venue at Barrio, where the first CAVE party welcomed around 90 people. A month later, 130 people showed up, packing the room to capacity. By the third edition, CAVE had already moved into Barrio's main room.

What started as a party among friends quickly became something bigger. Over the years, CAVE grew into a community built around underground electronic music, shared experiences and the freedom to be yourself. The people who make up this community, from partygoers and loyal fans to ambassadors of the CAVE spirit, are affectionately known as the Cavers. Eight years later, the original spirit that brought everyone together remains at the heart of everything CAVE does.

BEYOND ONE VENUE

Over the years, CAVE has grown beyond the walls of a single venue. Alongside its regular club nights, the project has explored new spaces, cities and collaborations, from open-air editions at Grand Carmes and La Vallée to Antwerp Pride, afterparties at Red&Blue during the Darklands festival, a special edition at Club Strong during Madbear Week in Madrid, and even a tea dance at Redlight Bar in Lille.

Each experience has opened up new possibilities, bringing CAVE to different audiences while allowing the project to develop new formats and connections. These editions have become an important part of CAVE's identity, showing that its spirit can travel beyond one venue while remaining rooted in the same community and musical vision.

In September 2026, CAVE brought its LVST concept to UMI for the first time. The event marked the beginning of a new connection with the venue and opened up a promising path for the future. As Barrio prepares to close its doors at the end of 2026, CAVE is ready to continue its journey, with UMI becoming its new home base and new possibilities still ahead.

STRANGER SOUNDS: A NEW CHAPTER, AN OLD FRIEND

On Friday 13 November 2026, CAVE celebrates the next chapter of its story with Stranger Sounds, a special collaboration with Kluster Madrid. Bringing together two party concepts, the edition marks CAVE's official launch at UMI as its new home base, while paying tribute to the spirit of its very first party.

The original CAVE flyer from April 2018 featured an iconic mask, a visual that returns for this edition as a nod to where it all began. Eight years later, the same spirit of good music, good people and connection carries on, now with Kluster Madrid joining CAVE for this new chapter.

A familiar symbol, a new collaboration, and the same belief that a little party never killed nobody.

LVST... MUSIC, FETISH & CREATIVE FREEDOM

LVST is CAVE's playground for freedom, fetish and creative self-expression. Rooted in underground electronic music and alternative club culture, it brings together people who embrace individuality, challenge conventions and express themselves without judgement.

With a dresscode for every edition, LVST invites its crowd to explore different styles, identities and creative expressions. Across three rooms, music, atmosphere and show come together to create an immersive club experience where artistic freedom is encouraged, inclusivity is embraced and respect always comes first.

UMI: A SPACE FOR WHAT'S NEXT

When the news broke that Barrio would be closing its doors at the end of 2026, CAVE began looking for a new home. Throughout the summer, we explored different possibilities and reached out to venues across Brussels. Finding the right place proved challenging, with limited options available and several venues already booked.

Then, following CAVE's first event at UMI in September 2026, the venue approached us with the opportunity to establish CAVE there as its new home base. The timing felt right, opening up a new chapter at a moment when finding the right place mattered more than ever.

Recently renovated, UMI offers an impressive sound system, a well-designed club layout and a welcoming team. The quality of the sound and the overall experience make it a natural fit for CAVE's music-first philosophy.

With UMI as its new home base, CAVE can build on eight years of history while continuing to develop its identity, explore new concepts and create new connections within Brussels' underground nightlife scene.
